DEBATE ON DRUG STORE SITUATION

"Resolved that it is necessary for the drug storess to keep open on Sunday" was the question under discussion last night at a meeting of the Sunday school classes of the Baptist church held in the church building. The meeting was planned as an inspiration for gerater interest in Sunday school work and in addition to a good music and literary program the debate was the leading feature.

The question was ably handled on both sides and the judges had some little difficulty in arriving at a conclusion as to which side had the best of the argument, but finally gave the honors of the evening to the negative side. The affirmative side was taken by Guy R. Eddy, druggist. Mrs. Geo. Jones, Katie Davis and H. C. Dunn, while the negative was discussed by Harry Williams, Mrs. Arthur Winstone. Mrs. W. O. Williams and Claude Luce.

The judges were D. J. McMahan, H. R. Pore and W. B. Waite. After the program had been rendered. an invitation was extended for all to report at the basement where a nice lunch was served consisting of sandwiches, coffee, cake, etc. George Nash acted as head waiter and he was ably assisted by both ladies and gentlemen of the congregation. This was a very enjoyable feature of the evening and proved a profitable social hour, for all had a good time.

—The Knights and Ladies of Honor will meet in Kelly's hall Thursday evening. There will be initiation and a social and lunch will be served afterwards. 1t fp

Monessen May Have Jitney Bus Service

If present plans of one of our local citizens materialize, Monessen will in the very near future have a "Jitney" bus service that will convey passengers to any part of the city where the streets are paved for the nominal 5 cents or not over 10 cents. This will be a wonderful thing for people living on the hills and will be a good thing for the town generally.

The "Jitney" is becoming a great institution and is being established in many cities and towns. Kittaning this week got the first "Jitney" and people are taking to it like ducks to water. Everywhere it has started the "Jitney" has proven a good thing.

Heavy Peach Crop According to Owner

According to the prognosis of T. W. Kisor, proprietor of the Spring Farm Dairy east of town, there is going to be a heavy fruit crop this year if late frosts do not occur.

Mr. Kisor has on his plantation 4,000 peach trees and the trees are loaded with fruit, the peaches being as large already as a lima bean. Estimating his crop at the minimum, Mr. Kisor expects to harvest 4,000 bushels of peaches, the largest crop since his orchard was planted several years ago.

If this orchard is an index to what the peach crop will be, there is little doubt but what peaches will be cheaper on the market than they have been in many years.

It is reported from other sections that the cherry and other fruit crop will be equally heavy In this immediate vicinity wherever there are cherry, apple or pear trees they are said to be full Other crops give a promising outlook and the harvest of 1915 will likely be an abundant one.

TWO ACCUSED OF FIGHTING DISCHARGED BY BURGESS

Accused of creating a disturbance by fighting on McKean near Fifth street, Charleroi, Sunday night, April 25, Willis Briggs of Monessen and Tony Bender, both secured their discharge at a hearing before Burgess Woodward at the burgess' office Monday night. It was stated that the two men had engaged in an argument over a ring battle at the Charleroi skating rink the previous night, and that argument had led to an attempt to inflict blows. Language for which borough ordinances provide a fine was said to have been used, a disturbance was created and a crowd collected. Women were on the street at the time.

Speaking of his administration of justice at the hearing, Burgess Woodward said: "It was an argument. It was not a fight as I could determine from the evidence which I heard and I thought I was right in discharging both. Briggs might have struck at Bender, but I don't think he hit him. I depended largely on the testimony given by two witnesses."

COL. SCHOONMAKER MAY BE NEW HEAD OF RAILROAD

It is given out in railroad circles that at the next meeting of the directors of the Monongahela Railway company which is the new company formed by the merging of the Monongahela and the Northern, Col. J. M. Schoonmaker will succeed J. J. Turner as president. Mr. Turner is the executor who will have complete charge of the operations of the company for the present.

The Monongahela Railway company is held jointly by the Pennsylvania and the New York Central companies, each owning a moiety. It has been the custom of the companies to alternate in the presidency of the Monongahela. This is one of the reasons given that Mr. Turner will be succeeded by Col. Schoonmaker.

The property will be operated as a single property and at present will be under the direction of the officials of the Monongahela. G. B. Obey, with headquarters at Brownsville. Pa., is the superintendent. It is said that the new road will be in operation within 30 to 60 days.

Exhibition of Physicial Training

Thursday evening of this week the Turners will give an exhibition of physical training in the hall at the corner of Donner and Second that promises to be out of the ordinary and interesting to all who enjoy this kind of work. A good program has been arranged. In addition to the exercises there will be music by the orchestra and dancing. The public generally is cordially invited to come and witness these exercises as they are of a helpful and educational nature. 82-3t fp

Ran Over Child, Mob Attacks Him

Washington, Pa., May 12—Attacked by an infuriated crowd after he had run over Phillip Bogdon, aged 5, stepson of Alexandenr Stack of Daisytown, Victor Hill who operates an automobile between Coal Center and Daisytown, was beaten unconscious and is confined to his home by his injuries. No hope is entertained for the recovery of the child, whose chest was crushed. Hill stopped his machine and tried to aid the child.

Thompson Affairs May Be Soon Adjusted

Uniontown, Pa., May 12—Public confidence in the rehabilitation of the local financial situation was strengthened here today when it became known that three of New York's most expert accountants, representing the firm of Price, Waterhouse & Co., would arrive this morning to complete the audit of the accounts of J. V. Thompson, preparatory to the closing of the big deal which means so much to this community. The coming of the auditors is taken as tangible proof that steps are actually under way for a speedy restoration of Fayette county's former prosperity.

Friends of Mr. Thompson, who have had the utmost confidence in his ability to handle the situation and who have stuck to him during the trying times of the last four months, are jubilant, for proof that things are actually being done to terminate the receiverships as soon as possible, it is thought, will stabilize coal values and re-establish credit.

Plaintiff Loses Out in Spicy Assault Case

George Greim, 60 years old of Duchtown, was the defendant Tuesday morning charged with assaulting Mary E. Morris, a woman 28 years old. Testimony was offered that Mary Morris had bought four chickens from Greim and that she went to his house to pay. Old man Smith, it was testified, happened to be near the house. heard the woman scream and went to her rescue. It was also testified that he looked into the room and walked away. Greim testified that he made no assault, but stated that the woman talked very eloquent to him in bad language.

George Greim was acquitted and Mary Morris, being unable to pay her part of the costs, was committed to jail.

Before Judge Charles D. Copeland at Greensburg, the case of Mike Fraid against Lafayette McMahan of Monessen, in which the charge was pointing firearms, and assault and battery. was tried. The case was concluded as court adjourned for the day.

Today—The twelfth episode of "The Exploits of Elaine." Notice the fact that the 15th, 16th and 17th episodes of this picture are of the best as they deal after the capturing of the clutching hand. We have today also another L KO comedy, Billie Ritchie's company, although he is not in this picture.

Tomorrow, Thursday—One of William Fox productions "The Gilded Fool" in five parts. As good as the "Kreutzer Sonata."

"Who Pays" will be the successor of the fine William Fox productions, lasting for 12 weeks. We consider "Who Pays" which will appear in our theatre every Thursday in three reels even more valuable, more profitable to a certain extent that the William Fox productions, which will be continued after the expiration of "Who Pays," after 12 weeks. 1t

ELDORA PARK WILL HAVE BUSY SEASON

While the work of brightening up things about Eldora park has been going on, booking of dates for the 1915 season is being continued. Within the last week two important outings were booked and the park management closed with John A. Welber of Finleyville to conduct Friday night dances throughout the season in accordance with the plan which held last season.

The Roscoe schools have selected May 25 as the date for their annual school picnic, and arrangements are being made by committees for the affair. Special cars will carry the school children to the park, where they will be looked after and cared for by the park people.

One of the most important announcements to be made at this time is that of the booking of the date of Saturday, August 28 for the Donora workingmen's picnic. This is considered the largest industrial picnic during the season from the Monongahela valley, and this will be its first year at Eldora park. In the past this outing has gone to parks in the vicinity of Pittsburgh. Superintendent Clark of the American Steel and Wire company at Donora, and the committee of which he is the head closed with Assistant Manager Roy S. Sharpneck on the date within the last few days.

Weber's Friday night dance at the park will be a complimentary affair on May 21, the opening night, to his patrons. The dance floor is being scraped and put in good shape.

Weber and Heilbroner Straw Hats are Ready

NEW YORK'S newest straw hat is the "TAIHO" now on exhibition and sale at this store.

It is being shown at the same time in the nine Weber and Heilbroner hat stores in New York city—and in the leading store of each of several hundred other cities.

This hat conforms to the style requirements of the season in New York and is the representative hot weather hat of the metropolis.

It takes its name from the "Taiho" braid—specially imported from Japan for these hats, for which the EXCLUSIVE AMERICAN RIGHTS have been secured by Weber and Heilbroner.

It is a smart, medium rough sennit, "picked up" by hand, giving it a different appearance from a machine-pressed hat—which always looks painfully perfect.

The "TAIHO" sells for $3—the standard price of the Weber and Heilbroner hats.

This store has the exclusive agency for these hats in this city.

The Business and the Man

ELBERT HUBBARD

No business long remains greater than the man who runs it. And the size of the business is limited only by the size of the man. Our limitation say to our business: "Thus far and no farther." We like the Dutchman who named his hotel "The Limit." The Gould system, the Vanderbilt system, the Harriman system, the Pennsylvania system—they are all rightly named. It is system that makes a great business possible. When Jay Gould gathered up a dozen warring, struggling streaks of rust and rights of way and organized them into a railroad system, he revealed the master mind.

The measure of your success is your ability to organize, and if you cannot bring system to bear, your very success will work your ruin. The average life of a successful general store is twenty years, then it fails—fails through lack of system. The man does not grow with his business. An army unorganized is a mob. Napoleon's power lay in his genius for system, and he whipped the enemy, one against three, not only because he knew the value of time, but because he had the ability to systematize.

The character of the man at the head mirrors itself in every department of every enterprise. A certain kind of landlord can care for a certain number of "guests" and the quality of the guests attracted is according to the quality of the landlord. Increase the number of people to be fed and housed and usually your hotel keeper gets into very hot water. Fifty extra people unsets his system, and either his guests leave or else his "help" steal him to a standstill. A new and better manager must then come in or the referee in bankruptcy waits around the corner with a stuffed club. The measure of a man's success in business is his ability to organize. The measure of a man's success in literature is his ability to organize his ideas and reduce the use of twenty six letters of the alphabet to a system, so as to express the most in the least space.

The writer does not necessarily know more than the reader, but he must organize his facts and march truth in a phalanx. In painting, your success hinges on your ability to organize colors and place them in the right relation to give a picture of the scene that is in your mind. Oratory demands an orderly procesion of words, phrases and sentences to present an argument that can be understood by the average person. Music is the selection and systematization of the sounds of nature. Science is the organization of the common knowledge of the common people. In nature everything lies in the mass—materials are a mob—a man's measure is his ability to select, reject or organize.

Oh, no. A fellow's proudest moment was not the time he came out on top of his first scrap with "the kid next door." Nor was it the first time he "saw" Mary Jane home from the party. Nor again, was it when she "named the day." It wasn't when he made his biggest business deal; got his largest raise; became a partner in the concern and was paying an income tax. And while this, too, was a proud moment, the proudest of all was not when the first born came, nor was it when the youngster first lisped "dada."

All those were big moments, moments most every fellow remembers long and happily, but the real proudest moment was the time when—he wore his first pair of long pants.

When he took the job he said he would quit when he earned enough money to buy a goat and a gasoline engine. His ambition was realized last week and he handed in his badge.

Stevens Point, Wis.—F. M. Sackett and H. K. West are neighbors. Sackett made a garden this spring and West's hens—well, anyhow West was unable to belive that his hens, which are well bred, would go foraging where they were not invited. So Cackett scattered about his garden grains of corn to which was attached a thread aand from each thread a small placard. They bore such legends as these: "I have just been scratching in Mr. Sackett's yard." "My owner does not feed me enough and I have to visit the neighbors." When West saw these cards dangling from the bills of the chickens he admitted Sackett's proof was convincing.

Reliable evidence is abundant that women are constantly being restored to health by Lydia E. Pinkham's Vegetable Compound

The many testimonial letters that we are continually publishing in the newspapers—hundreds of them—are all genuine, true and unsolicited expressions of heartfelt gratitude for the freedom from suffering that has come to these women solely through the use of Lydia E. Pinkham's Vegetable Compound.

Money could not buy nor any kind of influence obtain such recommendations; you may depend upon it that any testimonial we publish is honest and true—if you have any doubt of this write to the women whose true names and addresses are always given, and learn for yourself.

Read this one from Mrs. Waters:

CAMDEN, N.J.—"I was sick for two years with nervous spells, and my kidneys were affected. I had a doctor all the time and used a galvanic battery, but nothing did me any good. I was not able to go to bed, but spent my time on a couch or in a sleeping-chair, and soon became almost a skeleton. Finally my doctor went away for his health, and my husband heard of Lydia E. Pinkham's Vegetable Compound and got me some. In two months I got relief and now I am like a new woman and am at my usual weight. I recommend your medicine to every one and so does my husband."—Mrs. TILLIE WATERS, 530 Mechanic Street, Camden, N.J.

From Hanover, Penn.

HANOVER, PA.—"I was a very weak woman and suffered from bearing down pains and backache. I had been married over four years and had no children. Lydia E. Pinkham's Vegetable Compound proved an excellent remedy for it made me a well woman. After taking a few bottles my pains disappeared, and we now have one of the finest boy babies you ever saw."—Mrs. C. A. RICKRODE, R.F.D., No. 5, Hanover, Pa.

Now answer this question if you can. Why should a woman continue to suffer without first giving Lydia E. Pinkham's Vegetable Compound a trial? You know that it has saved many others—why should it fail in your case?

For 30 years Lydia E. Pinkham's Vegetable Compound has been the standard remedy for female ills. No one sick with woman's ailments does justice to herself if she does not try this famous medicine made from roots and herbs, it has restored so many suffering women to health.

Write to LYDIA E. PINKHAM MEDICINE CO. (CONFIDENTIAL) LYNN, MASS., for advice. Your letter will be opened, read and answered by a woman and held in strict confidence.

Mrs. McCleary, 256 Sixth street, Monessen, says: "One of the family was bothered by sharp pains in the small of the back which often extended into the shoulders. After stooping it was hard to regain an erect position and often the pains almost took one's breath away. Headaches were almost constant and black spots floated before the eyes. A number of medicines failed to bring help and Doan's Kidney Pills were finally procured at the Hirsch Drug Co. The first box brought relief and three boxes made a cure."

"What do you want, sir?" asked Roland Gregory, with a surprised frown at Reginald as he entered.

"Have you ever seen that ring before?" Reginald handed the ring which Allan Rutledge had given him to Joy Graham's fiance as he spoke.

Roland Gregory started as he saw the ring. Roland took the ring and examined it hastily. He handed it back, saying scornfully, "No, I know nothing about that ring."

"I have a letter here," continued the editor of the Tribune, taking a letter from his pocket, "which was written by the jewelry firm in Chicago which sold this ring, and they say that you were the purchaser."

"Well, what of that?"

"This ring was taken from the dead hand of Mae Mobray after her death by poison," declared Reginald Nelson sternly. "Do you deny that you gave this ring to the girl?"

Roland Gregory was speechless. His eyes turned, terror stricken, on his unwelcome visitor.

"What are you going to do?" he asked in a conscience troubled tone.

"I am here today in the interests of Joy Graham," began Reginald. "I want you to release Miss Graham from her pledge to marry you," responded Reginald.

Roland Gregory glared at the other with glowing eyes of hatred. "I know what you want," he hissed. "You want to marry Joy Graham yourself. I have seen through your scheme ever since you came to Bronson." Roland Gregory arose and tried to push the editor out of the door.

Reginald Nelson shook himself free, took a typewritten paper out of his pocket and placed it on the desk before the other. Gregory read the paper quickly. It was a written renunciation of his claim on Joy Graham.

"I want you to sign that and sign it at once," said Reginald determinedly.

Roland Gregory reached into his hip pocket, and before Reginald understood his purpose he had drawn a revolver and pointed it squarely at the the editor.

"If I can't have Joy Graham neither can you," he hissed, with an oath. Roland Gregory fired.

The editor reeled and fell unconscious. Gregory turned the gun upon himself.

A noise was heard outside, and in a moment Allan Rutledge rushed into the office. The minister had come to the Tribune office to invite the editor to lunch and was told that he had left for the office of Roland Gregory. Fearing the result of the interview, Allan Rutledge had hurried after Reginald and arrived outside the office in time to hear the two pistol shots.

Hastily examining the two bodies and saying to himself in horror, "Dead: both dead!" he hastened to the telephone. In a few moments the police patrol dashed up to the factory. Allan Rutledge hastily told the chief what he knew about the letter which he found lying on the floor, which pointed so plainly to Roland Gregory as the guilty man in the Mae Mobray tragedy.

"I was not here in time to know what foreman of the Courier had resigned, being unable to endure the insolence of Ned Rowlands. Reginald Nelson found him packing his household goods and getting ready to leave Bronson for Grand Rapids, where he had been offered a minor position in one of the printing offices. It did not take much persuasion on Reginald's part to convince the ex-foreman of the Courier that it was to his interest to remain in Bronson.

"Where did the fellow get his money?" asked Roland Gregory of his prospective father-in-law one day as the two men were talking in the Graham home.

Joy Graham listened attentively to the conversation of her future husband and her father.

"I am unable to find out who is backing him financially, but I expect it is Edgar Prince. Prince will be supported for mayor by this new sheet."

"I think Bronson is arousing itself to be worthy of its high place in southern Michigan," answered the girl bravely. "The reforms which Edgar Prince and his friends are fighting for mean the redemption of our city from social paganism."

"Hush, daughter," responded Mr. Graham.

"If you want to enter politics, Joy," said Roland laughingly, "you will have an opportunity this fall. Your father is to run for mayor against Edgar Prince." The news that Mr. Graham of the law firm of Millman & Graham had accepted the nomination for mayor from the hands of McCrea and his friends brought much joy to Bronson's underworld.

The Edgar Prince faction suffered the disadvantage of being without a newspaper, while the Courier in every possible way hurled abuse and scorn at the "visionaries."

"When can you issue the first number of the Tribune," asked Edgar Prince anxiously.

"I am planning to bring out the first number on Oct. 1," answered Reginald promptly. "That will give us over a month in which to enlighten the people of Bronson in regard to some things which ought to be known, and I have no fears about the result."

"The new editor of the Courier is an able fellow," responded Mr. Prince, "and I can see that he is influencing some of our business men to favor the wide open policy."

"Come into our pressroom and see the new machinery which we are installing," said Reginald, and he ushered Edgar Prince into his plant.

"I have been thinking," said Reginald slowly, "that it would be an advantage if we could erect our own building for the Tribune and plan to enter it next spring. If we could begin the erection at once it would give the paper a better standing in the community. If I could get some of the business men in Bronson who are interested in our reforms to take stock in the Tribune I believe I could make the newspaper a power not only in Bronson, but all over southern Michigan."

After a further conference the result was that a large Tribune Publishing company was organized.

A week before the publication of the much expected first issue of the Tribune Reginald Nelson distributed circulars over Bronson announcing the advent of the new organ of reform. The circulars were headed, in leaded type, "The Bronson Tribune, The People's Paper."

This circular described briefly the policies which would be advocated by the Tribune and promised some interesting details in regard to the exposure made in the Independence day edition of the Courier. "The Tribune will be a newspaper without a muzzle," said the circular in conclusion.

CHAPTER XIX.

A Tragedy.

MRS. RUTLEDGE and her husband were interested when the Tribune printed the announcement that "Roland Gregory and Miss Joy Graham are to be married Oct. 20." "Poor Joy!" was their comment. "Maybe she can reform him."

"By the way," said Mrs. Rutledge, "I saw Mrs. Mobray yesterday morning, and she asked me about that ring which she gave me a long time ago."

"What ring?" said Allan Rutledge.

"The ring which Mrs. Mobray found on the finger of Mae after her death. You remember I gave it to you."

"Oh!" exclaimed the minister. "I remember. I had forgotten in some way altogether about it." He took out the gold band which he had laid in the drawer the evening previous to the midnight tour of Bronson.

"I shall attend to this at once," he said, taking the ring and laying it on his desk.

That morning he sent a letter to a jewelry firm in Chicago, inclosing the ring and asking them to trace, if possible, the buyer.

In two weeks he received a letter, returning the ring and giving as the name of the buyer a prominent citizen in Bronson.

Allan Rutledge read the name and gasped. "Can it be possible?"

And when Reginald Nelson was shown the letter he was amazed as well. The ring found on the dead girl's hand was purchased by Roland Gregory.

The Tribune had inaugurated a series of articles on the industrial conditions in Bronson. One of them showed the deplorable affairs in Gregory's factory. Roland consulted Mr. Graham, who, however, decided not to bring a libel suit for him.

Roland Gregory had been drinking somewhat that day, and he left the office of Mr. Graham in no pleasant mood. After visiting his club, where passed between the two men," declared Allan Rutledge, "that it is evident that the crazed wretch first shot Mr. Nelson and then ended his own life."

Dr. Gracely arrived.

"They are both still alive," he declared after a cursory examination, and then he added: "Mr. Gregory is fatally wounded. I think Mr. Nelson is only stunned."

The doctor soon looked up, saying quickly: "It is all right, Mr. Rutledge. It is only a scalp wound. The bullet glanced off the bone."

In a little while Reginald opened his eyes and stared around him. He saw the dark stream of blood on the floor.

"Where is he?" he asked in a hollow voice.

"He killed himself," responded Allan Rutledge quietly. "It was a miracle your life was saved."

AFTERWORD.

Bronson is a different city now from the one that heard Billy Sunday preach in times past. Edgar Prince is now mayor, the old gang of councilmen has been disrupted. The great power there now is the Daily Courier-Tribune, edited by Reginald Nelson. He fought the good fight and won, and Joy Graham, now his wife, is a great aid in running the paper.

Joy's father finally decided to join the church, having the mistakes of his own life made clear by the violent death of Roland Gregory. He it was who enabled Reginald to combine the Courier with the Tribune.

Joy and Reginald spent their honeymoon in England, in Earlham castle, in Essex, where the young nobleman's family (for heir to a title he turned out to be) made much of their beautiful young American relative.
